The Starting Line May 11 2022 How can we create high-quality learning environments for children from socially, politically, and economically marginalized groups? How do early childhood programs help to overcome the challenges created by poverty? Seeking to answer these questions, The Starting Line delves into the ups and downs of early education programs serving Latinas/os in Texas, using the state as a window into broader debates about academic opportunity and the changing demographics of the United States. Immersing readers in the day-to-day activities of Texas's early childhood education programs, Robert Crosnoe illuminates how significant obstacles can stymie the best intentions. Crosnoe pays particular attention to the complex connections among classrooms, schools, families, and communities, as well as the frequently unfolding interplay of educational philosophies. The result is a story highlighting the promises of early childhood education, the perils faced in attempting to fulfill them, and the degree to which Texas stands at the forefront of some larger movements and lags behind in others. Giving voice to bilingual educators and low-income Latina/o families, this book is a timely exploration of the strengths and needs of what will soon be the largest share of the US child population.

Phoneme Segmenting Alignment with the Common Core Foundational Skills Standard Two Dec 18 2022 In 2006, the easyCBM reading assessment system was developed to support the progress monitoring of phoneme segmenting, letter names and sounds recognition, word reading, passage reading fluency, and comprehension skill development in elementary schools. More recently, the Common Core Standards in English Language Arts have been introduced as a framework for outlining grade-level achievement expectations, to guide reading instruction and assessment across the United States. The purpose of this study was to examine the extent to which the easyCBM Phoneme Segmenting assessment contains items aligned with the Common Core Standards. Alignment analyses focused on expectations stated in Standard Two, Foundational Skills, for kindergarten and first grade. One hundred and sixty-nine words from the Phoneme Segmenting assessment were reviewed, comprising 98.2% of the unique words on the kindergarten assessment, and 100% of the unique words on the first grade assessment. Study results indicated that kindergarten Phoneme Segmenting items were weakly or not aligned with any of the Standard Two expectations. First grade Phoneme Segmenting items were strongly aligned with one Standard Two expectation (i.e., segmenting single-syllable words), but weakly or not aligned with the others. Reviewer errors and specific test item issues found were also discussed.

Literacy Acquisition in School in the Context of Migration and Multilingualism Apr 29 2021 This book presents the outcomes of a multi-methodical investigation of the processes of literacy acquisition. The focus is on mono- and bilingual first- and seventh-graders in schools in socially underprivileged areas of two major cities in Turkey and Germany. By means of extensive analyses of lesson videos, linguistic tests, interviews and ethnographic research, social, cultural, linguistic, pedagogic and didactic differences on the international, national, local and individual level are aligned with the momentary problem of exercising a school lesson and acquiring literacy on a daily basis. The results contradict to some degree that cultural and linguistic differences actually make a huge difference in the organisation and process of literacy acquisition. With the interdisciplinary background of the book, it addresses academics concerned with migration sociology, migration linguistics, classroom research, and bilingual education. In a broader perspective, the book contributes to the pedagogically and politically significant question how social and cultural characteristics of specific groups are stereotyped and partly unjustly combined in order to reach symbolic solutions for actual problems.
